Freeland boy learns from Suzuki masters

Clynton Easley, an Island Strings cello student of Linda Good, is attending the Central Washington University in Ellensburg today.

Easley will participate in a cello master class, in Suzuki repertoire and technique classes and in special enrichment classes. In the third grade at South Whidbey Intermediate School, Easley lives in Freeland.

Violin student Dianthe Girdner will attend along with instructor Linda Good. Good will attend the Teacher's Workshop on Friday taught by John Kendall from Edwardsville, Ill. Kendall was instrumental in bringing the Suzuki method to the United States in the '60s. Girdner is a home school student from Oak Harbor.

Festival participants will perform a final concert with about 300 Suzuki students from around the state.
